

IS THIS THE BRITAIN YOU WANT?

No one is now safe in a country in which 'law and order' has become a joke. Does anyone believe the main parties will take action to halt the collapse in our society? Scenes like that below will appear again and again - until you the people make up your minds to change things for the better.

THE SICKENING SCENE shown on the right took place at a South London Jobcentre on January 4. An unemployed electrician, Simon Bridge, was signing on for unemployment benefit in Bexleyheath, when a woman armed with several knives suddenly ran amok through the building.

Simon was left with a knife sticking right through the back of his head. He tried to pull it out as the knifewoman attacked other visitors to the Jobcentre, and staff.

Predictably, not one newspaper or TV station would reveal the identity or race of the woman for days afterward. The knifewoman was, in fact, Pearline Ayrton, 27. It is believed that she went berserk after being told her Giro was not ready. She had been described as the 'neighbour from hell' by those where she lived, after playing afro music all night, and is now in custody.

Mr. Bridge was later treated, together with other injured people, at the Queen Mary Hospital in Sidcup where the knife was removed.

Some days later, local people still had no idea who the attacker was, and asked staff at the BNP Bookshop which is not far away.

When a knife wielding maniac attacked shoppers in Rackham's Birmingham department store in late 1994, and cut the throats of more than a dozen victims, it was two months before even the local press would say anything about the man arrested for the attacks.

March 1995's BN described him as 'the face they did not want you to see'. David Cedric Morgan, who is black, has now been given ten life sentences for the knife attacks.

BN says that it does not serve anyone's interests - black or white - to have a media which is reluctant to admit to the race of those arrested for appalling crimes.

Society's problems cannot be solved if they are not faced up to. The entire British mainstream political establishment, and media, operate on the basis that problems will go away if only they can be concealed from the public.

If that the sort of Britain you want? It is the one you will continue to get until you the people decide to take action.

ROUNDING UP THE USUAL SUSPECTS

During January, a fire at an immigrant hostel in the German town of Lubeck made world news. At least ten people died in the fire.

Within a few hours, the 'usual suspects' had been rounded up.

Three youths - described as 'skinheads carrying far-right political material' - had been arrested nearby, and German President Herzog said that his 'patience had run out'.

Police said they could not confirm reports of masked men hurling petrol bombs at the hostel.

Within 24 hours the arrested youths had been released without charge, and police admitted they had no idea whether the fire was arson, or simply an accident.

Police then announced they had arrested a 21-year-old Lebanese man. This later news was given far less prominence by the media.

Media coverage had followed a well-trodden path to be seen all over the western world. Massive publicity for propaganda against the 'far-right' - based on 'evidence' which speedily crumbled.

In the United States, in 1991, desecration of a Jewish cemetery was traced to the owner of a security firm, who wished to discredit the cemetery's security firm, and gain the contract for himself.

A series of arson attacks on synagogues in Connecticut, during the 1980s., were found to have been carried out by Barry Dov Schuss, a 17-year-old Jewish student. Schuss said he had done it "show the vulnerability of synagogues to anti-semitic violence."

In East London, a year or two ago, 'BNP gangs' were blamed for a series of attacks on Asian restaurants.

After months of media coverage of the story, an Asian restaurateur admitted that the Asian community had known all along that the attacks were being carried out by Bengali protection gangs!

The catalogue of similar events to those above, which have attracted misleading press coverage, or outright falsification, would fill several books.

None of this, of course, indicates that there are no such things as 'far-right' attacks - such activities have been repeatedly condemned by the BNP.

What can be said is that press reports about such attacks must be regarded with the greatest suspicion.

Bogus 'race attacks' have a serendipitous - from the point of the 'controlled media' - way of appearing in the press in Britain just before important BNP activities.

We await with interest to see whether the usual pattern will be repeated during the BNP's forthcoming general election campaign!

43,000 'asylum seekers' in 1995

- 43,000 claim right to stay in Britain in 1995 - double the number in 1993
- 1995 figure does not include 10,000 more dependents who stayed too
- 60% only claimed asylum after entering Britain on visitor's visas or illegally
- Half only asked for asylum after being arrested for crimes
- One third from Africa
- £215 million paid in benefits last year
- Only 5% of asylum applications are granted - yet only 3% are sent back
- One fraudster alone claimed £360,000 a year in stolen benefits
- £18 billion world-wide fraud bill for one Nigerian gang alone

THE NUMBERS claiming 'asylum' in Britain rocketed to 43,000 last year, according to official Home Office figures. The figure was 11,000 more than in 1994, and double the number for 1993.

The Home Office admits that last year's figure does not even include a further 10,000 dependents who were admitted as well.

More than 60% of those claiming asylum only did so after already being in Britain either illegally, or on visitor's visas. Half only claimed asylum after being arrested for criminal offences.

Taxpayers are now footing a bill of £215 million a year in benefits payments to people seeking asylum - despite the fact that only about 5% are found to have a case under international law.

The backlog of cases under consideration is now 75,000, and the UK is regarded as the world's soft touch. A statistical analysis by the Home Office shows that 162,490 people claimed 'asylum' between 1989 and 1994. 4.5% of claims were accepted as genuine - 7,165 persons.

What happened to the rest? Only 3% were removed from the country! 38,000 were given exceptional leave to remain - effectively the right to settle.

One-third of last year's asylum seekers came from Africa. There are believed to be 400,000 illegal Nigerians in London alone! The asylum figures do not, of course, include illegal immigrants, or the tens of thousands admitted as family of those already here. The total is certainly well over 100,000 a year coming into Britain.

One Nigerian benefits fraud gang alone has made £18 billion world-wide. One man claimed for 79 tenants in Ealing - £360,000 a year - but only 17 existed.

When will the Government stop it?

OLD PICTURE - but nothing has changed since the 1950s., when this photograph was taken. The endless queue of Third World immigrants into Britain continues unabated.

Tory and Labour shame

A LEADING Tory activist has been jailed for six years after luring an elderly spinster to a party meeting while thieves stripped her home. David Archer (pictured). Windermere 'pillar of the community' Archer worked with a gang to burgle Hilda Harrop, 90.

NEWHAM COUNCIL'S finance boss, Cllr. John Isted, risks eviction after owing £3,500 in back rent on his council flat. Bow Court ordered Isted, 30, to pay £1,000 immediately and £200 a month. As housing chairman he was well known for pouncing on debtors.

Gulf war exposed Britain's ongoing defence scandal

THE COMMANDER of Britain's defence forces during the Gulf War, Sir Peter de la Billiere, says that the country's defence forces were shown by the conflict to be woefully inadequate, and that he doubted the morality of putting British lives at risk at all.

The sense of national triumph, which was cultivated at the end of the war, has turned out to hide a different story. Britain's military performance was, in fact, either near irrelevant to the conflict, or, at best, near disastrous.

The four UK armoured divisions on the Rhine proved so badly maintained that the country could only muster one operational division to send to the Gulf - and that only after cannibalising the remaining tanks for spares.

The Challenger tanks sent out broke down so frequently that the RAF had to provide a special transport operation to supply spares, and the makers, Vickers, had to send out civilian engineers to work on keeping them going.

LIES

Some tank crews, it transpired, had not fired their main gun in two years!

"It was an absolute scandal" says a senior officer. "It was one of the great lies. The taxpayer had been stumping up for this force in Germany for years, but it was only 23% effective, and a large number of crews had not even trained with their own weapon. Senior generals like de la Billiere were not even aware. He should have known."

The army was faced with the fact that, if the one division sent to the Gulf

'It was one of the great lies. The taxpayer had been stumping up for this force in Germany for years, but it was only 23% effective, and a large number of crews had not even trained with their own weapon' were lost, with it would go the entire effective strength of the British Army of the Rhine!

As a result, when the US asked for the UK division to lead the attack alongside the US Marines, de la Billiere refused, and asked for its armour to be moved to a safer area near Kuwait.

The UK division was thus able to advance rapidly - "a Sunday drive in the desert" as it was described by a participant.

Hugh Colver, then head of public relations at the Ministry of Defence, said: "The feeling was that our troops needed to do something to demonstrate they were there, but without taking unacceptable risks like going in with the US marines."

The entire mess was repeated across all the armed services. Brand-new SA80 infantry rifles frequently jammed. The RAF had no helicopter gunships, unlike the US, and used its Tornados to make low-level bombing attacks. One aircraft a day was lost, and the attacks had to be abandoned as morale slumped.

WORST

In the aftermath of the war, British military equipment has come to be regarded as the worst on the market. Even French equipment, which hardly saw action, has been selling well, and politicians and senior officers are queuing to buy US arms manufactures.

The UK manufacturers had, before the war, welcomed the chance to sell their wares as 'battle tested'. Politicians saw it as a chance to show Britain to be a world power. Margaret Thatcher's adviser, Sir Charles Powell, said: "Britain had to be there as America's best friend."

In a recent TV interview, which was not shown, General de la Billiere disagreed and doubted whether Britain should have fought at all.

He said: "I felt we should not be losing a lot of British lives. We weren't defending our families or anything. I wasn't prepared to go home from a sort of second battle of Waterloo with monumental casualties."

NO POSITION

Admiral of the Fleet Lord Hill-Norton recently warned: "There is no question in my mind that, even with the support of Allies, Britain is in no position to defend its interests at home or abroad." Lord Hill-Norton is a former First Sea Lord, and also former Nato chairman.

Morale in the forces is now at rock bottom. Other senior military leaders have issued warnings like that of Lord Hill-Norton. Admiral Sandy Woodward, who led the invasion of the

SOAMES: no British ships

Falklands in 1982, says the same.

BOSNIA

Armed Forces Minister Nicholas Soames has revealed that not one British ship has been hired to transport British equipment to Bosnia.

Britain has relied completely on 23 foreign registered ships - two from Panama and Luxemborg. Even a Ukrainian freighter has been used.

The merchant navy has become so depleted, since the Tory party came to power in 1979, that it has become impossible to transport armed forces equipment in UK ships, and another Falklands would be impossible.

The number of ships flying the Red Ensign has dropped from 1,200 in 1979 to only 253 last year. The number of seamen is now 18,000 - compared to 63,000 in 1979.

EUROPE'S BIGGEST SIKH TEMPLE

INNER-CITY Birmingham's skyline is being transformed by the building of Europe's biggest Sikh temple - which is now nearing completion after nearly two years.

The monster building, with a 100 ft. high dome, is now having the scaffolding removed. The Guru Nanak temple, in Handsworth's Soho Road, has cost £2m. It includes wedding suites, creche, offices, and overnight accommodation for 1,000 people.

Thousands of worshippers have already flocked to the temple from all over the world. It is the first Sikh temple outside the Punjab to boast traditional Indian architecture, and the dome is lit at night with an array of exotic colours.

The building is the 'jewel in the crown' for Britain's half-million strong Sikh community. Free meals for all will soon be available, according to the chairman Mohinder Singh. BN says that the white unemployed might like to try them!

Monster Birmingham religious centre takes off wraps

Residents' fury erupts at Morden mosque plan

TEMPERS flared recently at a public meeting called to discuss plans to build a giant mosque in Morden. Councillors faced calls for their resignation, as hundreds of residents packed St. Lawrence's Church Hall. The proposed mosque (pictured) will bring 1,000 worshippers into what was described as a 'densely populated area'.

The mosque scheme has been proposed for the site of a disused dairy by the Putney based Ahmadiyya Muslim Association, but residents say they want to see it used to provide jobs for the community. One resident, Steve Woolley, said: "There is an overwhelming sense of local anger at this project." The scheme will include TV studios, a library, and offices.

A large contingent of local BNP members attended the meeting on January 17, and were made to look moderate by remarks emanating from other people in the hall!

Three Labour councillors tried to hide themselves in the throng but were forced to speak. Councillors Alec Leaver, Steve Conquest, and Mickey Spacey, claimed they were legally barred from expressing any opinion, and that there were no grounds for refusing permission for the scheme.

Only one person in the audience of over 200 - with more listening by radio at an overspill meeting nearby - said he favoured the mosque plan. He accused all present of 'racism' and was booed!

Another said that the council's calculations about the size of the site meant that, in all probability, 2,000 would be attending the mosque.

Middle class pringle jumper and pearls types screamed abuse at the clergy, and two Asians said they opposed the mosque because the people involved were a hostile radical sect, with illegal immigrants, and that racial trouble would flare!

Only 96 parking spaces were proposed for the mosque plan, which was near a junior school. The scheme, if built, will leave local streets clogged with cars. In last month's BN we reported on a similar situation in Dudley. Locals say their driveways are blocked, and that they are abused by visitors.

● Massive extensions to a Blackburn mosque are set to get approval - despite protests. Residents say streets are choked by cars, and that the new dome and minarets at the Jaame Masjid Mosque, in Cumberland Street, will take away their light, and the 'calls to prayer' will disturb them.

BRICK LANE RIOT

REPORTS reach BN of a riot in the Brick Lane area of East London on New Year's Eve.

Riot police were called in after gangs of Asians fought Afro-Caribbeans near a club.

The disturbance is thought to have been about competition for white girls. A large array of weapons are believed to have been used. The story was, predictably, completely suppressed by the local media.

BLACK LADY WANTED TO GO HOME

The BNP recently received a telephone call from a black lady living in the Epsom area.

She said she wished to return to the Caribbean, and had been to see her local Tory MP to ask if financial assistance was available. She had been told in no uncertain terms that nothing was available, and asked whether the BNP could advise her.

The BNP told her that there is a Home Office scheme to assist repatriation, although the amount available is pitiful, and that she should contact the Tottenham MP Bernie Grant, who is campaigning for resettlement grants.

The fact that a black lady should approach our party for advice in this way indicates how much is changing. Even a year ago, such a thing would not have happened.

BOSNIAN AFFRAY

THREE Bosnians have been charged with affray, after the stabbing of an Eastbourne restaurant owner in the town centre.

The owner of the Welcome Cafe, in North Street, was seriously injured in the attack, and is being seen by plastic surgeons.

Fears as British National Party sets up in Burton

Branching out into the town

THE formation of an official branch of the British National Party in Burton will strike fear into ethnic minorities in the area, race watchdogs believe.

by Trader Reporter

Claims by the extreme right-wing party to have set up a local branch have been condemned by local mainstream politicians. But the BNP, which wants to ban immigration and begin a repatriation programme, says it will step up its activities in Burton and South Derbyshire over the next year.

Party members from Stoke have been working in the area to gain support. Leaflets have been distributed in Burton and South Derbyshire over the past six months.

A BNP press release issued this week says: "This has resulted in the recruitment of a number of local people, who in the face of industrial decline of their town and the ever increasing numbers of ethnic minorities, have become disillusioned with the 'old gang' politicians."

Amir Kabal, the director of East Staffordshire's Racial Equality Council, said: "The BNP has been talking about this for a long time."

"If they have set up a group it will create a lot of tension and it's something any ethnic minorities will be very worried about because of the views that they hold."

But Mrs Dean, a member of East Staffordshire Borough Council, added: "It worries me that anyone should join such a party."

'STRIKING FEAR ETC. ETC. SAY RACE WATCHDOGS'. Who writes this rubbish about the BNP in the Burton Trader - a robot?

TO THE POINT

What is the truth about the Brixton riot asks the Mail? The truth is that many people in this country don't live close to immigrants, and have very little idea of what it's like.

Having lived in an inner city area for 45 years and seen thousands of members of ethnic minorities move in, I've watched the area go from bad to worse. Those who arrive complain about the conditions while simply making matters worse.

Many, but not all of the immigrants in my area are ignorant and discourteous. They let shop doors close in your face, and make no allowance for you when you're on the pavement in groups, forcing you into the road. They show their feelings about us by being bullish and arrogant.

Yet we expect the police to ignore their attitude even when they riot. I have put up with loud music, abuse, and dislike for 30 years, so what can I do? Like most people did in the seventies, I can sell up and move to another part of the country.

Letter in Daily Mail from Kenneth Pearson - December 1996

The saddest letters I receive are those - they came in profusion at the time of the VE day celebrations - who now ask what they fought for.

They have no freedom of speech: even jokes will land them in court. They have no security in their homes. The blue British passport is dead, and to use the weights and measures which they learned as children is now a criminal offence.

To them at least, I can say this. You are not alone. For the indignation you feel is almost universal.

Alan Clark - Sunday Mail December 1995

The question raised in relation to Britain's European role is of another order of magnitude. It is the question nations usually only confront at war.

The inhabitants of a country overrun by a conqueror have to choose between accepting his authority and denying it in the hope of liberation. All other questions of policy fall into abeyance. If that is not understood in Britain today, it is only because Britain's fighting men saved this country from both experiences. We seem to breed quislings in peacetime.

Lord Beloff - The Times

What was the point of belonging to a group that was not politically active? Why not join the British National Party? "We reckon we're a cut above them" Ralph said. Friends of Mosley considers the BNP and NF to be racist thugs. The FOM sees itself as quietly superior, the aristocracy of the far right.

Wartime imprisonment is a piece of history which the Friends of Mosley believes has not been dealt with fairly. Each issue of Comrade reminds its readers of the names of old BUF members who joined the army during the war and were killed, to make the point that they were patriots.

It also reminds readers of the harsh conditions of wartime imprisonment. Richard spent four months in Walton prison, then, "They sent me to a concentration camp in Ascot, with 12ft. high barbed wire and armed guards. They fed us on half rations because there were 700 of us, and they were only getting rations for 500, and after a few months we were so weak we could hardly stand up." As he speaks of it his voice shakes with fury, and he bangs the table. Francis Beckett - Independent on Sunday December 24 1995

'Gay' bar dubbed 'bender bar'!

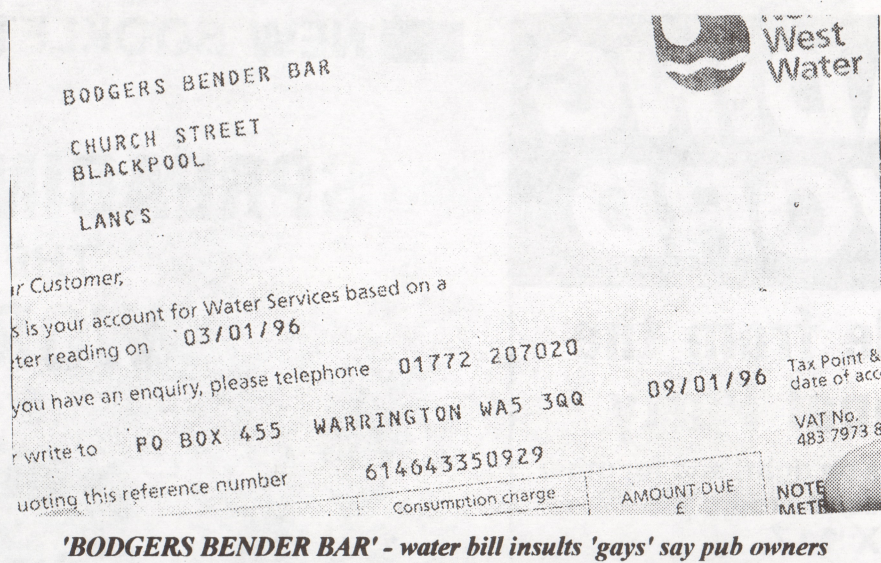

Blackpool hit by water bill tragedy

NORTH WEST WATER have sent a bill to Blackpool's homosexual pub Bodgers - describing it as 'Bodgers Bender Bar'. Licensees Cliff and Sharon (pictured) are furious - and have hit out at the slur on the resort's top perverts' paradise. As reported last year in BN, residents were furious when their local pub was turned into an upmarket bar for - well - benders actually. Locals, who had drunk in the pub for years, were turned away at the door for not being of a bender persuasion.

Now the first water bill to be sent to the pub since its conversion to a gay bar has turned out a little queer. The bill was addressed not to Bodgers, but to Bodgers Bender Bar! Sharon Mair, 26, says: "It's annoying when you spend months trying to get accepted. It's insulting to the customers, and I shall be writing a strong letter to the water company."

North West Water say the pub has been registered since 1981 as Bodgers Bender Bar, and no one asked for it to be changed. Owner Cliff Mair, 39, says that is impossible. The pub only opened as Bodgers last May. The water company say they will change the entry in their computer if required.

Last May, Mr. Mair said normal people were being turned away from his hostelry by bouncers because 'they would not fit in'. Does size matter after all BN asks? One had drunk in the then Grosvenor pub for 25 years.

'BODGERS BENDER BAR' - water bill insults 'gays' say pub owners

Village hall charges whites £20 an hour but Asians nothing

LOCAL associations have been forced out of their village hall in Heston, because they can no longer afford the charges of up to £20 an hour.

The groups include local scouts and political groups, who used it for jumble sales. A kindergarten is paying hundreds of pounds a month.

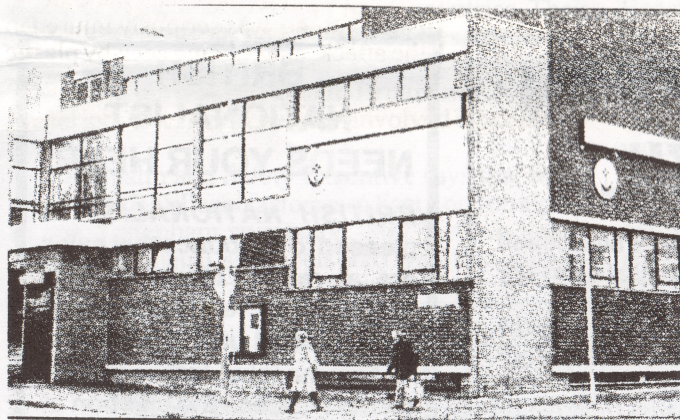

Fury, however, erupted recently when it was revealed that Heston Council had held a 'public meeting' about the future of the recently renovated hall - but had unfortunately forgotten to ask the public!

At the meeting it was agreed that there should be two price brackets for Heston Village Hall. Asians pay - nothing. Whites pay up to twenty nicker an hour.

Councillor Rajinder Bath said that Asian elders would be getting the hall for free because they were 'frail' and 'old'. They would use the hall five afternoons a week.

A letter to the local Hounslow Times, from BNP member John Roberts, said that claims by Cllr. Bath that there was very little provision for local Asians surprised him - to say the least - and that the council seemed to have forgotten about their own 'equality' policies.

Gissa our money back councillor tells Afro centre!

A TOP AFRO-CARIBBEAN cultural centre in Leicester is threatened with closure. Council bosses have threatened to withdraw the £192,000 a year grant to the Imani Ujima Centre in Highfields (pictured left), unless nearly £12,000 is repaid.

Chair of the leisure committee, Councillor Robert Wann says he wants a cheque for £11,990 to reimburse money spent by the manager of the centre doing up a nearby house in Myrtle Road. The house is owned by the manager, Carleton Howson.

"I'm not interested in any more excuses" said Cllr. Wann "I just want to see a cheque for £11,990."

Mr. Howson (pictured right) says the money was spent to provide extra offices for the centre in his house. "We have nothing to hide" he said. The council says Howson has produced no solid evidence.

Without the £16,000 a month grant from the ratepayers the centre will close straight away.

Plain tales of life in Britain

Visit an 'art exhibition' and buy a bomb

RIOT TORN Brixton is now hosting an exhibition of truly 'avant garde' art. The Cabinet Gallery, in Coldharbour Lane, is selling bombs - minus only the explosive.

The exhibition, by American 'artist' Gregory Green, includes a £2,500 suitcase bomb, a £2,000 bomb hidden a bible, and incendiary flares. Mr. Green's earlier shows, in Chicago and Germany, have been raided by police.

Three devices have already been sold to anonymous buyers. Toby Jessel, the MP for Twickenham has called for the closure of the exhibition. Another MP, Michael Fabricant, said: "This so-called art is a training ground for terrorism."

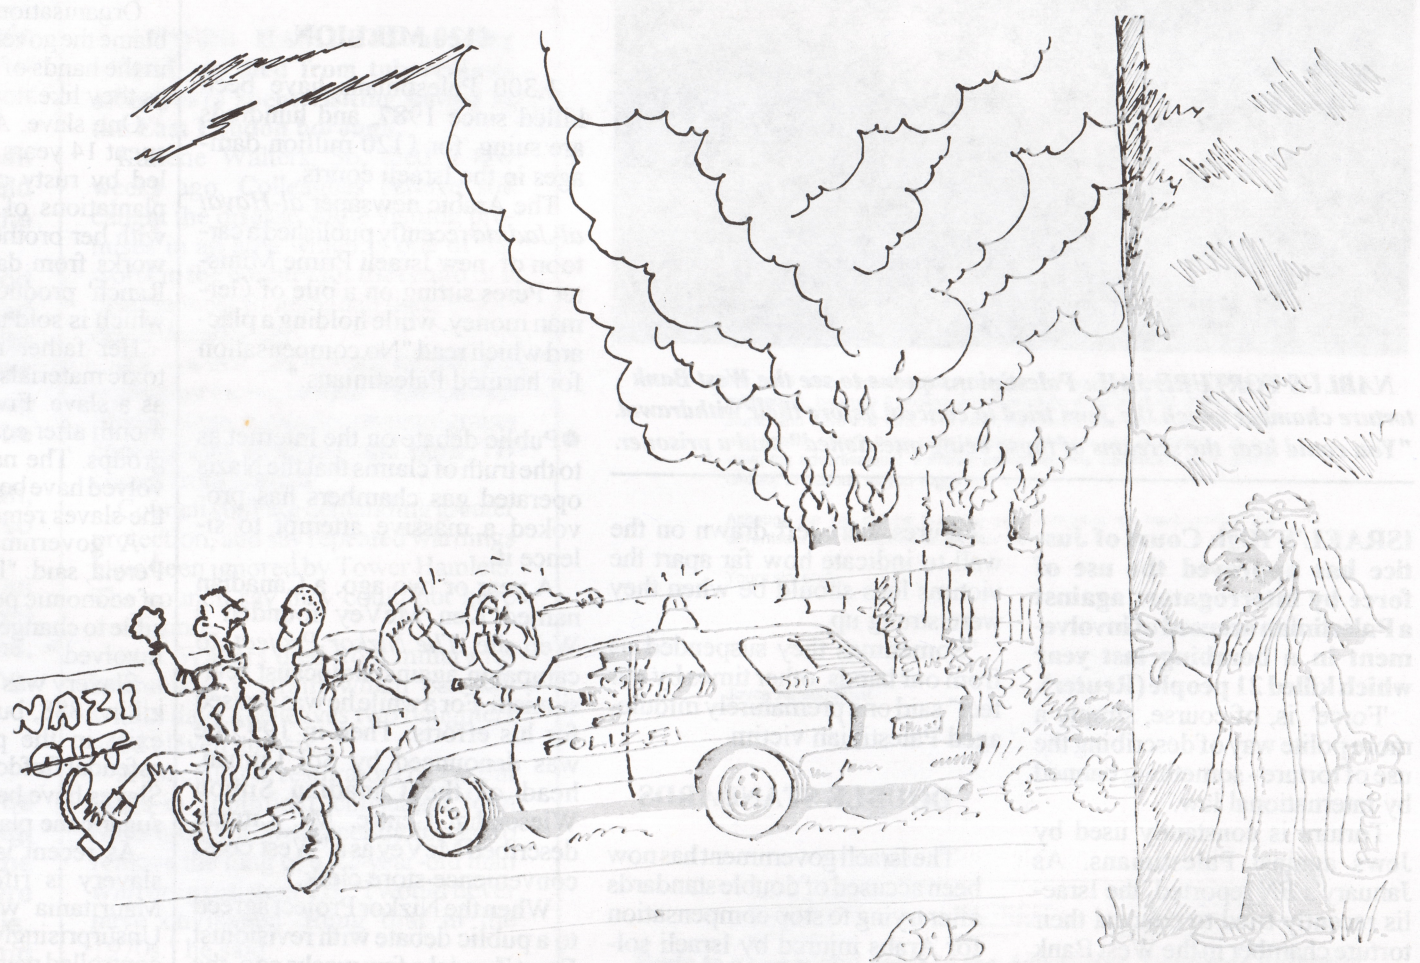

36-year-old Green says that the bombs are 'models' and therefore legal. The devices, however, come with printed instructions on making explosives using commercially available materials.

Owners of the gallery, Martin McGeown and Andrew Wheatley, said Green's work was art. "Because it's in the gallery and made by an artist it is art" said McGeown.

Green denied he was trying to be controversial. He is displaying a 'nuclear device', and Work Table 5, recreating a 'terrorist squat', at the Saatchi Gallery.

HELP ARTHUR FOWLER

Following the appearance of December's BN on the Internet, a wit put a message on uk.politics asking why, if we complain of wrongful treatment by the police, we did not help Arthur Fowler from East Enders.

The answer is that, when we receive his membership sub, we will do our best!

Keep up your subs BNP members (hint hint). You never know!

TREVOR McDONALD 'WEST INDIAN FIRST'

ITN newsreader Trevor McDonald has thrown cold water over those who believe in 'integration'.

In an interview in the Daily Mail he says: "Britain has been very good to me, but I will always be West Indian."

McDonald says he didn't come here because he liked the people, the climate, or the political system - but because of the opportunity to work.

Says it all really.

YET MORE ANAGRAMS

"Scottish National Party: "Oh nasty tartan politics."

"William Waldegrave: "Veal? Wield a grim law."

"Virginia Bottomley, Health Secretary: "I am the totally overbearing hysteric."

'BNP COULD NOT HAVE PUT IT BETTER' LIBEL

Oxford academic David Selborne has received substantial libel damages for an article in The Independent, which said views in his book The Principle of Duty, 'could not have been put better by the British National Party'.

Mr. Selborne, grandson of a rabbi, told the High Court that he and his family were distressed by a review of his book, which ended with the comparison with the BNP.

The Principle of Duty has become very influential since its publication a year or two ago. It argues that western society is being destroyed by an obsession with personal rights unbalanced by any sense of duty to society.

Mr. Selborne is, of course, quite right, and his book was used as subject for a recent BNP seminar.

Not that we are suggesting we could put it better than the author himself!

SPREADING THE WORD

British National Party Handbook on PROPAGANDA

SPREADING THE WORD is a handbook on propaganda that has just been produced by the British National Party to supplement its Activists' Handbook, published last year. Spreading the Word is illustrated and runs to 60 pages. It contains five sections, namely: (1) General Principles of Propaganda; (2) Recruitment; (3) Canvassing for Elections; (4) Speaking to the Media; and (5) Speaking from the Platform and Presentation of Party Meetings.

This handbook devotes special attention to familiar enemy smears against the BNP and nationalists generally, advising the reader on the best techniques for dealing with these, whether they be raised in the process of trying to recruit new members, when canvassing voters on the doorstep or when taking part in interviews with the press, radio or television. The handbook is a mine of information on every problem involved in spreading the nationalist message and winning support for the BNP. It costs £1.50 plus 36p p&p.

Why Britain detests the Tories. Aimed especially at disillusioned Tory voters, listing the failures of the Major Government. £4.50 per 1,000 plus £4.70 p&p.

HANG CHILD MURDERERS!

The vast majority of people agree that the death penalty should be reintroduced for child killers. Yet neither Conservatives, Labour nor Liberal Democrats are prepared to back such a measure into law. Parliament is supposed to represent the people. But the do-gooders who sit in Government are more concerned with the rights of murderers than with the safety of our children. Sick child killers are kept in prison often in relative luxury and at vast expense, until such time as they are released to kill again. Others such as Ian Brady and Myra Hindley are a constant reminder to the tragic parents of their victims. All those like Brady and Hindley, gave up the right to live the moment they took a young life. With more and more of these cases occurring it is time for the death penalty to be reintroduced. A country which allows the killers of its children to live is morally bankrupt. Only the British National Party is committed to the reintroduction of the death penalty for child killers.

FOREIGN NEWS

ISRAELI HIGH COURT APPROVES TORTURE

NABLUS TORTURE JAIL: Palestinians queue to see the West Bank torture chamber which the Jews tried to conceal before their withdrawal. "You could hear the screams of those being questioned" said a prisoner.

ISRAEL'S High Court of Justice has approved the use of force by interrogators against a Palestinian accused of involvement in a bombing last year which killed 21 people (Reuters).

'Force' is, of course, simply a more polite way of describing the use of torture - something banned by international law.

Torture is constantly used by Jews against Palestinians. As January's BN reported, the Israelis recently tried to conceal their torture chamber in the West Bank town of Nablus. In their hasty withdrawal from the town much evidence was, however, left of what had been going on for years.

Figures were left drawn on the wall to indicate how far apart the victims legs should be when they were strung up.

"Sometimes they suspended us from our hands, other times by our feet" said one prematurely middle-aged Palestinian victim.

DOUBLE STANDARDS

The Israeli government has now been accused of double standards after trying to stop compensation for Arabs injured by Israeli soldiers while accepting reparations from Germany.

"While Israel accepted millions of marks from Germany, Israel refused to give compensation to those people who lost their sons, or lost eyes, or lost their legs" said Abu Middein, the former Minister of Justice in Palestinian autonomous areas.

A row has been sparked by reports that the Israeli cabinet intends to approve a law absolving government forces for their actions during the intifada.

In Britain, in contrast, and as a result of Jewish pressure, 85-year-old Szymon Serafinowicz is to be brought to trial for claimed war crimes over 50 years ago.

£120 MILLION

1,300 Palestinians have been killed since 1987, and hundreds are suing for £120 million damages in the Israeli courts.

The Arabic newspaper al-Hayat al-Jadida recently published a cartoon of new Israeli Prime Minister Peres sitting on a pile of German money, while holding a placard which read "No compensation for harmed Palestinians."

●Public debate on the Internet as to the truth of claims that the Nazis operated gas chambers has provoked a massive attempt to silence it.

A year or two ago, a Canadian named Ken McVey founded a Web site, The Nizkor Project, to campaign against holocaust revisionism. For a while he was praised for his efforts. Then in 1995 he was denounced by Sol Litman, head of the Canadian Simon Wiesenthal Centre. Mr. Litman described McVey as a "West coast convenience store clerk."

When the Nizkor Project agreed to a public debate with revisionist Ernst Zundel a few weeks ago, the Wiesenthal organisation sent out thousands of letters asking Web firms to block all debate.

SLAVERY IN BRAZIL

THOUSANDS of people have been found by Brazilian authorities living in slavery on ranches in Sao Paulo.

Among the more than 4,000 slaves in the Sao Paulo area alone are hundreds of children, who are tied to trees to stop them escaping. Many have sores on their hands and infected cuts from spraying sulphuric acid into cuts in tree trunks to provoke the flow of resin to make chewing gum and glue.

Organisations representing the landless blame the government. They say that land is in the hands of a powerful few, who can do as they like.

One slave, Ana Maria de Almeida, has spent 14 years in servitude, mostly shackled by rusty chains to pine trees in the plantations of southern Brazil. Together with her brothers, aged nine and ten, she works from dawn to dusk on the 'Divine Ranch' producing the thick brown resin which is sold to the US and Europe.

Her father is blind from contact with toxic materials. He was sold at nine to work as a slave. Five ranches were raided last month after complaints from human rights groups. The names of the landowners involved have been kept secret, however, and the slaves remain unfreed.

A government representative, Silvio Pereira, said: "Local landowners have a lot of economic power, and it has been impossible to change the conditions of the people involved."

Slavery was officially abolished by Brazil in 1888, but at least 10,000 slaves still exist in the poor areas, which are run as feudal fiefdoms by landowning families. Slaves have been found in coal mines, and sugar cane plantations.

As recent issues of BN have reported, slavery is rife in Pakistan and also in Mauritania which has 100,000 slaves. Unsurprisingly, very little is heard in the controlled media about present day slavery by Asians and blacks - but plenty about slavery by white people - who abolished it nearly 200 years ago!

BRITISH NATIONALIST NEEDS YOUR HELP!

BRITISH NATIONALIST is pleased to announce that sales are at record levels, thanks largely to increasing bulk orders by local units.

The massive influx of new members since the election of Derek Beackon in September 1993 has also boosted circulation, thanks to the greatly increased number of subscriptions by individual members and supporters of the BNP.

One thing which readers constantly request is more news about BNP activities up and down the country. Despite local party activity being at its highest level since the formation of the BNP, some units are still not letting us know of their good work! Units should send us regular reports, together with any photos and press cuttings.

Readers perform an invaluable service by sending us national, international, and local press cuttings, and other items. Local papers often cover issues suppressed in the national press. We have as a result been able to expose corrupt Labour councillors. Items of local news are often of great importance in building up a national picture of what is happening. Please do not mark press cuttings, excepting the date and name of newspaper (if not shown) since this may prevent reproduction in BN.

Please help us by keeping those news items rolling in!

BNP VISITS UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, CORK

ON JANUARY 11, BNP National Press Officer Michael Newland flew to Cork to speak at the city's University College. The invitation to speak for the motion 'That nationalism is a valid political ideology' came from the Law Society.

In view of the atmosphere of terror created by Trotskyites at British universities, no one was more surprised than Mr. Newland when the meeting went ahead in good order and without any demonstrations.

Well over a hundred people attended, and the chairman remarked that the meeting showed that getting TV cameras in was not the only way to get an audience!

The entire audience heard an address from the BNP which was very different to what they expected.

Mr. Newland concentrated on the destruction of western society, which was inevitable as a result of an internationalised economy. The coming political battles would be about how to take power back to the nation state, he said.

So many people attending had comments to make which addressed things they thought would be said - rather than what was actually said - that several people voiced complaints at the unfairness.

One member of the audience said that he was a communist, and favoured a communist solution to world problems, but the BNP was voicing little understood matters, which should be discussed.

Another person said that Ireland was a white country, therefore 'racist', and black immigrants should be brought in. The wry smiles among the audience revealed what they really thought of that idea!

When a vote was taken the ayes and noes were difficult to tell apart in volume, and a hand vote was called for. About a third supported the motion in favour of nationalism.

Several people came up to the BNP's spokesman after the meeting, shook hands, and said that his speech was very good.

Mr. Newland said later that his visit showed Ireland to be more civilised than the UK - at least from this visit!

The BNP warmly thanks University College Cork's Law Society for the invitation.

●The BNP was approached during January by Channel Four, and asked to participate in a programme about the growth of TB in the East End.

The offer was refused - in view of the disgusting treatment the BNP has received in the past from this station.

Look out for a Channel Four programme blaming the BNP for TB!

YOUR LETTERS

Write to: The Editor, British Nationalist, PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW

Sir:

I was considerably bemused by the recent article in the Sunday Telegraph regarding the BNP.

Of course, none of us was privy to Flora Hunter's interview with the BNP, but I feel confident that many issues must have been discussed in addition to the repatriation of non-whites - the only subject she felt it appropriate to mention.

From what I have read there are innumerable matters in their manifesto - not least the commitment to reduce crime - instead of the periodic ritual of parading the subject every time a general election appears on the horizon. Crime is arguably the most frightening and devastating problem facing us all.

I also felt it was extremely unfair and mischievous to suggest that the BNP hopes to 'scheme' its way onto our TV screens. We all know the word 'scheme' has diverse connotations, but from the general tenor of this lady's report she intended it to mean conniving, deceitful, and unethical.

Should a party which has the genuine interests of Britain uppermost in its mind be accused of scheming when it wishes to return our country to a position of greatness in the world, instead of being the non-entity it has become.

Britain is now happy to take any crumb of comfort that even Third World countries offer us, and subservient to every Brussels edict.

Did Churchill scheme when he led our country to victory in WWII? Did Wellington and Nelson scheme?

It appears to me, as a veteran of World War Two, that this country is in a more catastrophic situation than for 50 years. At least in the past we knew who our enemies were and could plan, and did plan, to defeat them.

Would we had men and women at the helm today of the calibre of the past.

Mr. A. Lund, Eatley, West Yorkshire

Sir:

The controlled media's recent praise for Singapore epitomises how liberalism suppresses half the argument.

The reason Singapore is successful is not at bottom because of its economic policies - these are merely a vehicle for something more basic.

The country has maintained racial and cultural integrity, and also sovereignty - all things which we in Britain are systematically destroying.

As a result Singaporeans will accept very large savings from their incomes to put into the government's investment plan. They know they will be the eventual beneficiaries.

In Britain no one could be sure of such a thing. A state investment fund might be rifled by a future European federal government.

White people know they may before long leave many of our cities. Where then is the attraction of paying for investment in those cities? In a situation of utter uncertainty it is sensible to demand one's cake today.

Conversely, ethnic minorities can well see a decline in the very qualities which persuaded them to come here in the first place. Why then invest in a country many perceive they may want to leave for better pickings elsewhere?

The end result is that government is forced into bribing the electors with their own money in the form of immediate handouts. No one would vote for anything else under the rule of the present parties.

It all makes perfect sense in the situation in which we find ourselves - or in fact the situation into which we have been forced!

Mr. M. Newland, BNP Press Officer, c/o PO Box 117, Welling, Kent

Sir:

The unadulterated poison spread by the TV gets worse. I don't watch much television because of it, but one of the half-decent programmes lately has been Soldier Soldier.

Until recently that is. It was bad

LETTER OF THANKS

Dear Mike,

On behalf of Grinnell College I would like to thank the BNP speaker for his generous well-prepared and enthusiastic presentation to our class 'Racism in Britain'.

His topic was, of course controversial but I believe the students received a great deal from the presentation.

I do not think any agreed with your analysis or solutions for the declining elements of British culture and society. However, we all appreciated his speaking for your organisation and allowing us to judge for ourselves (beyond media stereotypes).

We may not have agreed, but as Americans we defend anyone's right to speak his truth.

We thank you.

Sincerely yours,

Dr. Kesho Y. Scott, Grinnell in London. London WC1

BNP's comment: - The fact that Press Officer Michael Newland received an invitation to speak like this at all, and the above letter, from a black lady academic, indicates how much is changing in the world.

Can anyone imagine any of this even two years ago? New opportunities need new kinds of activity, putting aside the past, and thinking creatively.

enough when Stubbs betrayed his wife for an Asian woman. Since then it's got much worse, with a new black corporal and his nauseating white wife; the pair of them constantly pictured at home in the bedroom by a producer, who is obviously making the most of this multi-racial junk.

If that weren't bad enough Lieutenant Forsyth - an idiot at the best of times - has decided to marry a black South African. It just goes on and on.

The producers are driving away what they correctly perceive as a healthy patriotic audience.

Mr. C. Watson, Staines, Surrey

Sir:

Sir James Goldsmith's Referendum Party is, in my opinion, a device to channel votes away from legitimate patriotic political parties like the BNP.

In France, Goldsmith's intervention in the presidential election undoubtedly prevented Jean-Marie Le Pen from going into the final round.

Mr. Goldsmith is always described in the press as having dual British/French nationality.

Where does his loyalty lie?

Mr. M.D.S Easter, Sevenoaks, Kent

Sir:

Having been a member of the old NF, I now wish to become a member of the BNP.

I am now an OAP.

Wishing you and the party all the best for 1996.

Mr. J. Prior, Hereford, Worcester

Sir:

Thank you for all the help I received in England.

Your work is very important to us, and I enclose my sub to BN.

We have many of the same problems with immigration.

Lasse Lehtinen, Finland

Sir:

Care in the community eh!

I and my ladyfriend have just been assaulted by a psychopath while visiting a cemetery to pay our respects to a deceased friend.

No action from the police. The law is upside down.

God speed the election of a BNP government.

Mr. G.J. Matthews, Colwyn Bay

Party conference advances 50 seat election campaign

A SPECIAL CONFERENCE of top party officials was held early in January, at which detailed plans were formed for the BNP's 50 seat general election campaign.

The two-day conference brought together organisers, and leading members from all over the country, to discuss the party's progress in general, but chiefly to advance the most important initiative in the party's history - standing 50 candidates at the election.

National Organiser Richard Edmonds told the meeting that the campaign was the most important activity at present, and presented a provisional list of well over 50 target constituencies. The concerted effort of everyone in the party was vital, he said.

Each of the target seats was discussed in detail at the meeting, and a far clearer picture emerged of the way ahead. Mr. Edmonds pointed out that the election could be in the latter part of this year, and emphasised that campaign work should start now, if it had not already done so.

Elections Officer Eddy Butler went through the technicalities of elections in helpful detail. He said that the election was not an end in itself. The objective was to harvest a new generation of recruits for the party at a time when disillusionment with the main parties was at an unprecedented level. A national stocktake by organisers had shown the complete viability of fighting 50 seats - something which the party's enemies had doubted.

Party Chairman John Tyndall addressed the meeting last.

He said that the BNP could have done better in 1995. 1995 was a year in which the burst of publicity after Millwall had faded. Some areas needed to do much more leafletting in the year ahead.

The party now needed to get down to work preparing for the election. The central leadership would be working far more closely with units to help them maintain a high output of party activities and material, and the opportunities were enormous.

The whole conference was judged a most enjoyable and constructive event by all those who attended. The social atmosphere allowed people to talk at length about everything of interest to party members. We look forward to the next conference!

JOIN THE PARTY!

This year will probably be the last full year before the next General Election. Help the party carry on the fight against our nation's enemies and join us!

Rates are the same as last year: £20 a year with a 50 per cent discount available for OAPs., full-time students and the unemployed.

All current member's subscriptions were due for renewal as from the 1st of January. Don't delay, send off today!

Every member's subscription goes towards maintaining the party's infrastructure, keeping it functioning and making it more effective.

There are too many people who complain about the state of Britain, and then invent endless excuses as to why someone else should do the work of trying to do something about it.

Membership of the BNP costs you 5.47 pence a day - 2.74 pence if you are unemployed or retired. Is that too much to spend in order to fight for a future?

We are leading the fight for the British way of life, and showing the British people that one party does speak for them - the British National Party!

At the next General Election, the BNP will attract more votes than ever before and recruit more new members than ever before, making the BNP stronger than ever before. Make it happen!

Join the party, build for victory!

What we stand for

- The establishment of a government of national unity that will put an end to nationally divisive party warfare; the return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British withdrawal from the European Community: trade with Europe where it suits us but no political ties.
- The disbanding of the multi-racial Commonwealth and its replacement by a new Commonwealth of self-governing white states.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- An end to the financial swindle that causes inflation and slump, and its replacement by a sane and fair financial system that will give the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The subordination of the power of the City to the power of Government, and the harnessing of the City to the needs of British industry.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food; also the restoration of the fishing industry by protection of our traditional fishing grounds.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people - the protection of our countryside and an end to the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.
- Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and the sacking of 'trendy' teachers.
- An alternative defence strategy: withdrawal from NATO; closure of all foreign military and air bases in Britain; British withdrawal from the war in former Yugoslavia, where no British interest is at stake; the bringing home of British forces from Germany; the strengthening of Britain's defences and a position of armed neutrality.
- An end to overseas aid and the allocation of the money saved to the financing of repatriation and greater help for the needy at home.
- The crushing of the IRA, and the termination of the Anglo-Irish agreement and firm support for the loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- A return to healthy moral values aimed at strengthening the family and community.
